Writes His Parents Interesting Letter Serves With Marines

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ross of Glenwood avenue have just received a most interesting letter from their son, William, who is enrolled as a private in the Marine Corps of the U. S. and now stationed at the Marine barracks in Cavite in the Philippines. His letter of the early summer tells of his efforts to qualify as a sharpshooter with the anti-aircraft guns on the range. He also indulges in a bit of personal experience and speaks of going with a friend on a five-day leave, up along the Moron trail, into the wilds of the country where men are still savage and despise the white man. They met such a group of natives and true to form, were pounced upon, when a slugging match ensued and William's friend was dashed with their barbs. William's revolver saved them but he had to carry his suffering friend many miles on his back toward the base at Cavite. It was necessary to remove the poisoned dart, by sucking out the blood and applying a tourniquet, which he did, and which the doctors said probably saved his life. His friend had been struck in the arm and also in the leg. William said that he had to summon all his strength, under the excitement of the moment, and that the experience is enough for a long time. His friend has recovered and they are now both back in the ranks and ready with the rifle for any orders Uncle Sam may have for the Marines.

Speaks At Hermon

Dean-emeritus Charles R. Brown of Yale Divinity school was the speaker Sunday at Mt. Hermon school. At the morning service his topic was "The Deeper Insight" and at vespers he gave his famous address, "What is your name?" Carlton W. L'Hommedieu gave an organ recital at the close of the vesper service.

Dean Brown said that there is a deeper meaning to the processes of the universe than many will admit. Is there intelligence behind creation? Did a mechanical device or happenstance cause the remarkable pattern of the earth and sky as we see it? Can a machine create literature, music, science, and religion as we know it? To believe that demands a stretch of credulity.

The stream does not rise higher than its source. The universe can best be explained only by a divine purpose, even though God cannot be proved by scientific demonstration.

Next Friday afternoon, Dec. 6, at 3 o'clock in Alexander hall, the Fortnightly club will meet to hear an address on "Current Books" to be given by Mrs. George Davis of Deerfield. TAXPAYERS' SPEAKER

Career man in Foreign Service and foreign director of School of Public Affairs, Princeton, will be principal speaker at annual meeting, Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations, Boston, December 7.

Thanksgiving At Northfield Seminary

Among the alumnae of Northfield seminary who early this week had signified to Alumnae Secretary, Mabel Darrah, their intention of returning to campus for Thanksgiving are nine girls who left the seminary last June. They are Vida Timbers of Boston; Priscilla Alden of Colby Junior college; Dorothy Fenner of Wellesley college; Dorothy Bullard of the University of Vermont; Ruth May of Westbrook Junior college; Virginia Spurling of Cambridge; Shirley Burr of Pembroke college; Lois Mahan of Williamstown; and Deborah McNeil of Brooklyn. Many others returned for the day but did not sign the register in time to be included in this list.

The Thanksgiving Day speaker was the Rev. Truman Hemmaway of Sherburne, Vt., father of two girls now attending the seminary, Lynette and Olivia Hemmaway. He spoke in Sage chapel at 10:30 a. m. A moving picture, "The Boys from Syracuse," was shown in Silverthorne hall at 5:30, and also a short ski movie. The joint Northfield Hermon orchestra, led by Paul Ivory, made its initial appearance and entertained the students for half an hour before the picture was shown.

During the afternoon there was a showing of the afghans made by Miss Marian Keller's knitting club for British War Relief.

Goos Through Fence While Driving Auto

Emerging from the C. V. underpass on the road to Hermon, Tuesday afternoon, Miss Dorothy Peaslee of the Mt. Hermon school business office ran her car to the left of the highway, razing several of the posts and then went over the bank. The rays of the bright sun in the western sky had blinded her, she said. A passerby took Miss Peaslee to her home and a state police inspector who chanced along, investigated. Miss Peaslee suffered no injuries, but the car was badly damaged.

Heed The Chalk Lines

The newspapers of the state are calling attention of the motorists of the state, to heed the chalk lines of the highways. Public Works Commissioner John W. Beals, in his weekly road bulletin, says motorists should respect the divisional and center lines which have been painted on the highways to channelize traffic and prevent passing accidents. Highway crews have just completed painting 1500 miles of white lines, which is 500 more than a year ago. Motorists should never cross a solid white line. Incidentally never park your car on the left hand side of the road.

Fine Progress Made

The new Center school building adjoining the high school is progressing well in its construction and as its shape is showing up, many citizens are attracted and most favorable comments are heard. The brick walls on all sides are up, the partitions are in place on the lower and main floors and the roof will soon be in place. It is said that the special building committee have the cost entirely within the appropriation and that will please the taxpayers. The heavy fall of snow Wednesday was the first serious handicap to progress.

State Federation Taxpayers Associations To Meet In Boston

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall and DeWitt C. Poole, diplomat and educator, will be the principal speakers at the ninth annual meeting of the Mass. Federation of Taxpayers associations. The meeting will be held at the Hotel Statler, Boston, Dec. 7.

The occasion will bring together delegates and members of Taxpayers associations from cities and towns across the state. The program will center around the theme "Meeting the Challenge to American Democracy."

Poole, a career man in the foreign service of the United States, later director of the School of Public Affairs at Princeton university, and now a business in Providence, will speak on "Has Democracy a Future in the United States?"

Replying to this challenge, Poole will draw on his experience in Berlin, Paris and Moscow during and after the first world war, a period in which he saw at first hand the outbreak of the Russian revolution and the breeding of the conditions in Europe which gave rise to the second world war.

Gov. Saltonstall will summarize some of the steps to improve the administration of state affairs taken during the first year in Massachusetts' history without a session of the Legislature.

Other speakers will be Reginald W. Ford, president, and Norman MacDonald, executive director, of the State Federation.

The morning session, beginning at 10:30 will be given over to the annual business meeting of the Federation at which delegates from city and town associations will elect directors of the State Federation and will establish legislative policy of the federations.

More than a score of prominent state officials and legislative leaders will attend. Officials of the town of Northfield have been invited to attend.

TOWN TOPICS

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gordon Moody have returned from a vacation and motor trip to Washington and Savannah, Ga.

On Sunday evening at 7:30 the Young Peoples Forum of the Congregational church will present Mrs. George Kornstadt of Greenfield speaking on "Parliamentary Law." Everyone is invited to attend these very interesting meetings and to stay for light refreshments which conclude the evening.

Mrs. John Simpson, age 73, died at her home in Providence, R. I. last week Wednesday. She was born here in Northfield and for a time lived in Hinsdale, N. H. where she leaves a brother, Fred J. Veber.

Mrs. Bessie Symonds of Highland avenue will spend the month of December with her daughter and husband, at Worcester, after which she will go to Orlando, Fla. to spend the winter season.

Because of illness, Rev. John Wightman of Florence was compelled to cancel his engagement to preach at the Congregational church last Sunday morning. Rev. Orvil E. Mirtz of Mt. Hermon school substituted in his stead.

Calendars for the new year are beginning to make their appearance and the first to be distributed in this town are coming from the office of A. P. Pitt. Better call for one while the supply lasts.

Motorists going to Brattleboro are advised to use the Vernon route, as the construction work for the approaches to the new bridge at Hinsdale provides only mighty tough going.

It is reported that Mrs. Everett Kingsbury is at the Brattleboro hospital for rest and treatment.

The Riply family, who left last election day for a vacation and visit with relatives in the south, returned home on Monday. They report that they have a deluge of orders for their fine Northfield colonial rugs, received during their absence.

Miss Margaret Ross, who spent the summer at her home in the Highlands, has been visiting friends in Hutchinson, Kansas and at Chicago for the past month, but is now at Lynn Haven, Florida, where she will spend the winter.

It is reported that Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lanphear have purchased a lot on Birnam road from the Northfield Hotel company and plan to build a small home.

Leach In Trouble Held For Grand Jury Has Auto Escapade

A young man of this town, William B. Leach, 23, married with a wife and two children, was in district court in Orange Tuesday morning, charged with armed robbery and unauthorized use of a car. Judge Hartley R. Walker found probable cause and bound him over for the Grand Jury, under $5000, which meets in January. Police said Leach appeared at an auto salesroom on Monday in Clinton and at 4:45 a. m. C. in Clinton and stated that he wanted to buy a car. A new Buick met his fancy and he told the salesman, he wanted his wife at Northfield to see it. And so together they drove on via Orange and Warwick. In the Warwick woods, Leroy Smith, who was the salesman, said he was forced out of the car at the point of a gun and the man, not known at that time, fled with the car. Smith ran to the Warwick postoffice where he notified Athol state police. A general broadcast was sent out.

Two hours later, about 5:45 p. m. Corporal Charles Furze of the Shelburne Falls barracks received a complaint from a Vernon filling station attendant named Baswell, who said a motorist had obtained 12 gallons of gasoline and sped off toward Northfield without paying. His description of the man tallied with that given by the Clinton salesman.

With the two complaints, received by the state police, and the description of the man and car, an alarm was sent out and Deputy Sheriff Martin A. Vorce was notified to watch all roads. Other officers joined in the task and with Corporal Furze and Trooper Oliver Nichols later a search began, which ended in the arrest of Leach at his parents home in Northfield Farms.

Leach told police he forced Smith out of the car in Warwick with a wrench and not a revolver. He drove north to Vermont, where he picked up Donald Strange, 23, of Putney and then drove back to Massachusetts, via Vernon where he secured gasoline. He then drove to Northampton and back to Northfield, where he left the car in a neighbors barn and went to his home. Here he was found by the officers and arrested and taken to Greenfield police headquarters, for arraignment in the district court at Orange Tuesday morning.

Strange was fined $20 for the unauthorized use of the car, but being without funds, was remanded to the Greenfield house of correction with Leach, who was unable to secure bail. Testimony of both Leach and Smith coincided as they told their story in court except that relative to the revolver and to the sum of $600 which Smith claimed Leach showed him. Leach said he "just fooled" Smith about the money, as he had none, and used a wrench and not a revolver to force him out of the car.

Leach has had a previous Greenfield court record, consisting of a $10 fine for passing a bad check, Nov. 9, 1936; $20 fine for driving to endanger following an accident on the Mohawk Trail, Dec. 24, 1938; and a $25 fine in Clinton district court, Aug. 8, 1940, for breaking and entering in the night-time and larceny.

The car was a 1941 Buick sedan bearing plates D84AJ and was identified by Smith, and Baswell. The episode created much interest in this town as details became known.

Your Favorite Tree Your Favorite Bird Was Your Choice Made

A petition will be sent to the State Legislature this coming session, asking that official approval be given in the selection of a state tree and a state bird, as characteristic of the states natural life. The petition will be prepared by the Massachusetts Park and Forest Association and the State Audubon Society, and through the PRESS, the people of this town were invited to express their preferences. A coupon, indicating already favored choices, has been printed for three weeks, and a large number of responses have come in and been tabulated. The surprising thing is that many who should record their preferences through the ballot have failed to do so. The opportunity will continue for another week, so cut out the ballot from one of the last three issues of the PRESS and send it in NOW. In the voting thus far, the ballots indicate Northfield residents as in favor of the American Elm, by two to one, over the Red Maple, which is second choice. In the naming of the bird, the Chickadee, leads two to one, over the Song Sparrow which is second choice. The list of trees voted for include the Elm, the Paper Birch, the Red Maple, the Red Oak, the White Pine, the Maple, the Sugar Maple and the Rock Maple. Birds voted for include Barn Swallow, Bobolink, Chickadee, Song Sparrow, Wood Duck, Robin and Blue Bird. We shall publish the exact figures of the vote later, when the opportunity to vote has been closed. Now you fair readers, wake up, get busy and indicate your choice. DO IT NOW!

Town Clerk Notified Count Governors Vote Here Again On Monday

Official notice from the office of State Secretary Frederic W. Cook, has been sent to Mrs. Josephine Haskell our Town Clerk, that a recount is necessary in the votes for Governor, received at the recent election. The Board of Registrars will conduct the recount on Monday, Dec. 2 at the town hall, and representatives of the Republican and Democratic committees will be in attendance. Attorney Ralph C. Mahar of Orange has been named as the Republican counsel. The recount was requested by the Democratic State committee in behalf of Attorney General Paul A. Dever, the Democratic candidate for governor and by the Republican State committee, in behalf of Governor Saltonstall. The recount will be conducted throughout the state. The vote in Northfield as recorded and filed by the town clerk with the Secretary of State was Saltonstall 759, Dever 171. The belief among those who ought to know, is that there will be no change in these figures. The official tabulation of the figures of the recent election just completed by the Governor's Executive Council, show that Saltonstall received 7450 as his victory margin, exact figures being Saltonstall 999,864, Dever 992,414. There were 2,088,825 votes cast in the gubernatorial election, of which 53,465 were blank. Not within the memory of our citizens has any victory in a state wide office contest, lost on a recount, although several recounts have taken place. 351 cities and towns will witness the recount.

Aliens Must Register Time Getting Short

Alien registration will end on Dec. 26 and all non-citizens who have not registered within that time are warned that severe penalties will follow for failure to comply with the Federal law. Gov. Saltonstall of Massachusetts has issued a statement urging all aliens within the state to register promptly without delay. All aliens 14 years of age and over must register in person and be fingerprinted. Aliens under 14 must be registered by their parents or guardians. At the East Northfield postoffice, where registering is done for this district, Postmaster M. C. Skilton, reports that 99 aliens have already responded and have completed the registration, but there are probably about 30 more to be recorded. All those who have not registered, should arrange appointments at once with the postmaster.

The Milkman's Complaint

The milkman everywhere has a real complaint. It amounts to a grievance which can be remedied and perhaps you the reader can help. In talking with a local milkman, the Editor was astonished to learn that for every bottle of milk delivered, it takes five bottles in action, i. e., the bottle used this morning, another bottle at the dairy for filling, the empty bottle picked up this morning, another one partly filled in your refrigerator and another in the washing. These bottle cost money and they must be kept in circulation. An idle milkbottle is a needless expense. And, yet, the Northfield milkman never complains.

"The Flag Speaks"

Some time ago the American Legion embarked upon a campaign to instill in American hearts a greater love and respect for the nation's flag. It resulted in the filming of "The Flag Speaks" which is being shown at the Victoria Theatre, Greenfield, this Friday and Saturday. It is a magnificent short subject replete in exquisite technicolor, pulsating with action, and inspiring to a degree rarely attained in motion pictures. Because of its appeal and excellence every American should see it.

TOWN TOPICS

Mrs. A. F. Bennett left last week to spend a portion of the winter in New York, Philadelphia and New Jersey. She will also visit with her son, Dr. John Bennett and family in South Carolina.

The week has brought quite cold weather, strong winds, and sub-normal temperatures following the several rainy days of last week. Although we have had frosts and some snow squalls, the first real fall of snow was Tuesday night.

At the Center school the sixth and seventh grade pupils each presented a Thanksgiving play, at the weekly assembly under the direction of Miss Bralley. Songs and poetry were featured. The plays depicted the first Thanksgiving at Plymouth.

The local Boy Scouts held their meeting on Monday evening and several of the Scouts have passed their tests. They discussed plans to participate in the coming "Court of Honor" for Boy Scouts which will be held soon in Greenfield.

Clayton Miller, Master of Northfield Grange and Mrs. Miller were given a surprise party last week at their home in Greenfield in honor of their 20th wedding anniversary. It was also the 17th birthday of their daughter, Pauline. Many attended from Northfield.

The Selectmen, the Finance Committee, the Town Auditor, and Town Treasurer were in session at the town hall on Tuesday evening.

Rev. Dr. John B. Whiteman of St. James Episcopal church of Greenfield was the speaker at the Thanksgiving morning service at Mt. Hermon Memorial chapel yesterday at 11 o'clock.

On the greenward in front of the Northfield hotel, is a replica of a "nature garden in November." It has proved to be very attractive and engages the attention of many visitors.

Postmaster Skilton forwarded this week the first orders to Spurgeon Gage for his fine Orlando oranges. Twelve orders will be shipped very soon.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mroczek, of Maple St., who is at the Franklin county hospital as the result of being struck by an automobile some weeks ago, is gradually improving although she will be crippled for some time to come. There were four serious fractures.

Dr. and Mrs. Allen H. Wright spent Thanksgiving Day with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White at their home in Boston. Miss June Wright joined them at the family dinner and returned with her parents to Northfield today.

Mrs. Henry Johnson and her daughter Grace, who have been ill during the past week are much improved.

A group of women who are enrolled in the extension service course of studies in dress making, met at the high school on Tuesday evening.

The Chevrolet

Sold in Northfield by the Jordan Motor Sales of Hinsdale road. Here is a good description of the new 1941 car, as seen by a representative of the Press at the sales-room recently.

Gains in appearance and roominess are apparent in the 1941 Chevrolet. Underlying outwarc changes are chassis and engine refinements for power, smoothness, riding ease and durability. The two series, Special De Luxe and Master De Luxe have knee action. Vacuum power shift is standard on all models.

The two new series differ in standard equipment, decoration and trim. The cars are longer, wider and lower, and are high-lighted with chromium and stainless steel. The radiator grille ensemble is enclosed in a chromium-plated die-cast frame. The redesigned hood is wider to conform to the wider grille and larger body. Valleys between the hood and the front fenders are eliminated. "Sealed-Beam" headlamps in front fenders are spaced 5 1/2 inches farther apart and slightly nearer the ground. Flush-type parking lamps are just below the headlamps.

Running boards are eliminated. Beneath the lower edge of the door is a safety step surfaced with heavily ribbed rubber. Door panels follow the contour of the door column pillar and terminate at the bottom in an outward flare.

Slope of the windshield and rear window is increased. The rear glass is curved in all directions to blend with the body contour.

Front seats hold three persons and rear seats are wider through the cushion and at arm and shoulder level. The new bodies' greater length allows the rear seat to be set farther ahead of the rear axle. Instrument dials are in the line of sight, knobs within easy reach and illumination of the dash may be varied from bright to dim, or turned completely off, by rotating the light-control button.

The six-cylinder valve-in-head engine has horsepower stepped up from 85 to 90 without increasing piston displacement — principally by redesigning the combustion chamber to increase compression ratio from 6.25-1 to 6.50-1. Added power is achieved without compromising economy of gasoline or oil.

An innovation in the electrical system is an automatic switch which reverses the polarity of the ignition current each time the starter is operated. This prolongs the life of the ignition distributor points by equalizing wear on both sides.

Mrs. Maggs: I always say, my dear, one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives.

Mrs. Miggs: Well, Mrs. Maggs, it isn't your fault if they don't.

Traveling Teacher: What a quaint village. Truly, one-half of the world is ignorant of how the other half lives.

Native: Not in this village, ma'am. Not in this village!

Little Betty, watching the farm hands spreading out a stack of hay to dry, could contain her curiosity no longer, so she politely asked: "Is it a needle you're looking for?"

A policeman was questioning a man pinned under his car in an accident. "Are you married?"

"No," was the answer, "this is the worst fix I was ever in."

"This," beamed the proud father, handing over his young offspring, "is my chief asset."

"Yes, indeed," commented his friend as he tossed the child back, "a liquidizing asset at that!"

A salesman became tired of his job and joined the police force. Several months later a friend asked him how he liked his new position.

He replied: "Well the pay is fair and the hours satisfactory, but what I like best of all is the fact that the customer is always wrong."

Teacher: Willie, define the word "puncture."

Willie: A puncture is a little hole in a tire, usually found a great distance from a garage.

This Center Hall Saves Precious Space

NO one has ever denied the value and comfort of a center hall, although space-economy has often eliminated it from the small house plan.

Here, however, is a very small house with a space-saving—not a space-wasting—center hall, which actually makes this compact house larger and more commodious without spending an extra inch of precious floor area.

Notice how Randolph Evans, its architect, who designed it for the Monthly Small House Club, 140 Nassau Street, New York City, has achieved this plan-miracle. For one thing, he has combined both the entry and the bedroom halls so that one hall serves both purposes. Secondly, he has brought his cellar stairs out of the kitchen—where the door opening on them necessarily would occupy valuable wall space—and placed them in the hall. And, finally, he has placed costing not a cent more than an ordinary bathroom. It has three walls and floor finished in sparkling tile; the fourth wall is constructed entirely of hollow insulating glass blocks with inset ventilating louvers. These, being on the outside, flood the room with diffused daylight. They help, incidentally, to keep the room cleaner, for people are tidier in bright, well-lighted rooms. And don't be alarmed at their cost, for the architect has found that a panel of glass blocks is less expensive than a tile finished wall.

Mr. Evans has roofed the entire house with fire-resistant asphalt shingles in that very fashionable shade of brown—copper brown. These long-lived and economical shingles, with their surfaces of crisp, richly hued granules, distribute tiny lights and shadows over the entire roof, giving it greater depth and richness.

The house, sized comfortably to a fifty foot wide lot, can be built in most parts of the country for about $4,500, exclusive of land.

EDITORIAL

OUR FAITH AND FUTURE

"I can see no reason why this nation should not progress, to great heights, provided we have wise leadership and regain our faith in ourselves," said Gen. Robert E. Wood of Sears Roebuck recently and we must agree with him. He further said, "All our wealth, our natural resources are valueless unless we regain our moral and spiritual values, unless we abandon our fetish of security and regain the spirit to do and dare. We have seen in a military sense how utterly false was the conception of defensive warfare—in a nation that trusts to a Chinese Wall or a Maginot Line is sure to be conquered."

"I hope and believe our people are on the eve of a moral and spiritual renaissance—that the cheap cynicism of our so-called intellectuals is passing out, that the great fundamentals of home, family, religion and patriotism are being re-established. If they are, we have every reason to face the future with confidence."

I AM AN AMERICAN

Mrs. Wendell Willkie has written a wonderful message to the American people, written after her husband was defeated in the campaign for the Presidency. She says: "I am thankful that I am an American—that I live in a country where men and women may speak their minds, and disagree, and still be free; where men and women may worship as they choose, and not be questioned for it; where books are made to be read and preserved, not censored and burned; where children are born to live according to the lights God gives them, and to grow to the estates to which their several talents entitle them in a land of free enterprise."

"I am thankful that never in the history of the world has a dictatorship survived; that never has a subjugated nation remained for long in bondage."

"I am thankful that I live in a country where a united people will stand fervently behind their President-elect ready to labor hard and labor long in the interest of the one nation on earth which still guarantees to us as human beings the simple, decent rights that God must have intended human beings to enjoy."

The Back Yard Gardener

By G. O. Olson

This week I'm going to mention another vegetable which I think would make a pleasant change in the home garden. It's Chinese cabbage. Just like soybeans, this plant originated in China.

The Chinese have been raising this vegetable for nigh on to fifteen centuries.

Chinese cabbage, sometimes called celery cabbage, is of the same genus as ordinary cabbage (Brassica), but is more closely related to the mustards. It's blamed good eating.

Of course by us it's used largely as a salad plant, but some people use it as a pot herb. That means any plant whose young succulent parts are boiled and eaten as greens.

You'll find Chinese cabbage on the market now, because it's a cool weather crop. They recommend that it be grown in a rich soil and in a cool season. In fact, a muck soil is ideal because it's rich and can retain plenty of moisture.

Here in the North you plant it in late July or early August. It takes 60 to 70 days to bring it up to a good eating stage. That would mean around the last of September. Folks who have a well sheltered garden spot could probably plant it later and still get good results.

Plant it where you want it to grow. The reason for this is that the least check in its growth is apt to cause it to go to seed. If you want to grow it in the spring, you start it in the hotbed or greenhouse and when it is still young—about four weeks old—set it out into the field. Don't wait any longer, because if it gets older, the transplanting is apt to let it back.

The plants, regardless of how you start them, should be thinned to 12 to 15 inches apart. If you start it in late summer, as I suggested, it will usually come along in the cool autumn and do very well for you. But see to it that it has plenty of moisture and that there is plenty of plant food in the soil because the quicker the growth the better the cabbage is going to taste.

There are two main species—Pai-tsai and Pak-choi. The first one is the one usually grown for home garden use. It resembles Cos lettuce. In other words, it has an elongated, rather compact head, and is light green in color. The latter is dark green and does not form a solid head.

It will keep for several weeks in ordinary storage and will keep for a couple of months in cold storage.

Know Massachusetts

Compiled by State Planning Board

Do you know that the cost of living in Massachusetts is only about 22 per cent higher than in 1916, the year before this country entered the world war, but the average annual income per factory wage earner, however, is about 85 per cent. The number of factory wage earners, however, is about 29 per cent less than in 1916. . . . Of the Pilgrim Fathers, John Alden was 21 years old, William Bradford was 31, Edward Winslow, 25 and Miles Standish, 36. . . . Only nine persons in the company were over 40 years of age at the time of landing. . . . The entire white population of Massachusetts in 1775 was under 350,000 people, less than half the present population of Boston. . . . The Indians brushed their teeth every morning with a brush made by chewing the end of a twig until the end was frayed. . . . In August 1630, Isaac Johnson crossed the Mystic from Charlestown and started a house on his land at the site of the present Boston City Hall. Within a month Johnson died and, according to his wish, was buried on the upper end of his lot, thus creating the first cemetery in Boston, the site now known as King's Chapel Burial Ground. . . . The oldest and largest tuck manufacturing concern in the world is located in Fairhaven. . . . Detailed land use maps published by the State Planning Board for each of 300 Massachusetts cities and towns are proving helpful in local defense planning. . . . The total income of people in Massachusetts during 1939 is estimated at $3,035,000,000, of which 62 per cent was in wages and salaries, 7 per cent was other labor income including relief payments, 10 per cent was withdrawn from business by persons self-employed, and 21 per cent was from dividends and interest. . . . Approximately half a million wage earners are today employed in Massachusetts factories. Purchasing power of the present wage per worker is the highest ever recorded and is about 13 per cent greater than at the peak of the boom in 1929. . . . Assuming that $1.00 bought 100 cents worth of living essentials in Massachusetts during 1913, the same dollar bought 51 cents worth in 1920, 62 cents worth in 1929, 81 cents worth in 1933 and will buy approximately 73 cents worth at the present time. . . . Political franchise was closely limited by the early settlers. By 1633 there were but 350 men in the Massachusetts Bay Colony who were entitled to vote. . . . The Merrimack River at one time was known as the Monomack. . . . Public relief expenditures in Boston during August and September totaled $4,349,497, a decrease of 5.3 per cent from the same period a year ago. . . . A comprehensive analysis of planning laws in Massachusetts is contained in the October-November issue of "A Planning Forum" published by the State Planning Board.

The 1941 Ford

The complete Ford line of automobiles is sold in Northfield, by Spencer Bros. on Main street. Many have called at the showroom to get a look at the car and several sales have already been made. In talking with a Press representative, Ross L. Spencer gave a fine description of the new Fords.

The bigger Ford for 1941 emphasizes size as part of a general plan to improve riding comfort. Increases in wheelbase, overall length, seat width and head room are built into the new Deluxe and Super Deluxe lines.

Front seat of the sedan is seven inches wide. Window area is larger. Extra width of body makes the running board invisible when the doors are closed. A new "X" type of welded frame of greater rigidity and body mountings of thick rubber add to riding smoothness, safety and silence. Front and rear springs are longer.

Rear seat cushions are two inches further ahead of the rear axle. Individual coiled seat springs support curled hair bedded in latex to form the cushions. Four lever-type hydraulic shock absorbers assist the new springs, which are of softer "slower" steel. A ride stabilizer, connected to the front axle by swinging shackles, helps steering and minimizes side sway.

Over-size four-wheel hydraulic brakes are designed for sure stopping and longer service. A parking and emergency brake, acting on the rear wheels, by means of a cable, operates from a lever under the instrument panel to the left of the driver.

Also under the panel is a safety lock knob for the hood. Other conveniences are a hidden gasoline filler cap, automatic light in luggage compartment, ventilating front windows, new safety glass, twin windshield wipers with variable speed control, twin sun visors, fender tip parking lights, two-spoke clear-vision steering wheels and, on the super deluxe, double reinforced bumpers and a front license plate guard.

The 35-horsepower V-8 engine makes use of a lower gear transmission ratio for faster get-away. In the Super Deluxe line there is a new sedan coupe with seating capacity for six. Also a convertible club coupe, seating five, has an automatic top operated from a switch, whether or not the motor is running.

UNSAFE at HOME

As rare as a comedian without a stooge, is a listener without an idea for a radio program. If you have got a good idea for a new program, WOR will be glad to see it, but: before you send it along, Mitchell Benson, WOR's commercial program manager has some pointers for you.

Suggestion number one is: be sure your idea is original. It may be a new slant on an old idea, but it must have some novelty to it, a definite flavor of its own. It must have entertainment potentialities. Point two: the program should have merchandising angles. That is, the program should lend itself to advertising exploitation, by a prospective sponsor. Thirdly—before you submit a program idea to any radio station, ask yourself: "Is this the kind of program, I myself, would stay home to listen to?"

Submit your idea in a simple straightforward letter, enclosing a complete script of the proposed program. Benson adds: "No matter whether your idea is for a dramatic or a talk program, the station can better visualize your idea if it is in script form."

Most people who submit ideas do not listen to radio enough, Benson points out. They are not familiar with radio as a medium. Usually they offer ideas that are obvious and that already have been done on the air. Others listen to the radio, but offer ideas which are nothing but copies of already successful programs.
